Mary Pickford, the idolized star of the Famous Players Film company, adds another striking characterization to her notable repertoire of screen successes in that company's five-part adaptation of Frances Hodgson Bur-nett's great drama of optimism. The Dawn of Tomorrow, the world-famous story of a young girl's unfaltering faith and triumphant ultimate reward, which is at the Auditorium on the Paramount programme next Monday and Tuesday.

In this celebrated play that gladday.

dened the hearts of so many when presented on the stage with Eleanor Robson, and the screen version of which will cheer as many thousands more, Mary Pickford portrays the weird and wonderful character of Glad the autiful and ragged girl of the Lonand heroic courage even staryation and deadly peril are unable to quench. The delicacy of Miss Pickford's portrayal and the threads of forceful symbolism woven about the drama will make an unforgettable impression on the spec-

How the ignorant little slum girl, beautiful faith in the mysterious Power she but vaguely compre-hends, is enabled to save her lover's life from the gallows, bringing him a new hope and meaning of life, and awaken his reprobate nephew to a better manhood, are vividly related in this sublime drama of human suffering and sacrifice that has brought to many despairing souls a new inspiration to bear the trials of today in the expectancy of tomorrow's dawn.

The scenes in the mission of the slums, in which Glad first becomes acquainted with God, are delineated in the inimitable manner that is Miss Abbon feature.

Right at the opening of Cyrus Townsend Brady's picturized story. The Chalice of Courage, the hero is placed in an extraordinary position. The horse eing ridden by his wife along a mountain trail makes a misstep and rolls down a steep cliff. The woman is mor-tally injured and he does the only humane thing under the circumstances. Later this hero, Newbold by name, becomes a recluse in the mountains where the other threads of the story are drawn together, The picture is of the west from first to last. The plot is adequate for six interesting parts, and consistent, too. Mountain scenery in all its infinite variety, from spring to the dead of winter, was perfectly photographed and tinted and toned to produce the most natural of atmospheric effects.

Myrtle Gonzalez plays the part of an eastern girl who through the workings of fate becomes snowed in through the long winter months with Newbold as her only companion. A romance that buds in the beginning of their sojourn, blossoms into full flower when the warm breath of spring brings a rescue party. The recluse is enacted by William Duncan, the support being in the iam Duncan, the support being in the capable hands of George Holt, Natalie De Lontan, William V. Ranous, Anne Schaefer, Otto Lederer and others. The vaudeville attraction is Kelly-

MARY PICKFORD

AT THE AUDITORIUM.

Three Vaudeville Acts and Mary Pickford in a Paramount Feature on Monday's Bill.

Miss Katherine Deen has been with several high class attractions through the west and has a host tions through the wes to the best advantage. The novelties will surprise both old and young. This company has the record of being the sweetest and strongest company of singers on the road.

Three shows daily will be given; matinee 2.30, evening 7, 8.30. Adults 10c, children 5c. The Colonial orchestra of four pieces will render a musical treat to the patrons.

For today the exceedingly strong

For today, the exceedingly strong and brilliant drama of the present day and hour, The Builder of Bridges, is the feature. This offering of the Frohman Amusement company pre-sents the famous C. Aubrey Smith, the leading man of countless New York theatrical successes, in Alfred Sutro's play dealing with a young lad who play dealing with a young lad who steals $20,000 to pay his gambling debts and charges it to The Builder of Bridges. His sister saves him from fail by winning the man's love. In short, it is a powerful story of a strong man and a scheming woman. The leading part in the feminine role is played by the great beauty. Miss Marie Edith Wells, whose adroit handling of so difficult a part is one of the hits of the photoplay. The settings are at once photoplay. The settings are at once sumptuous and adequate and the outdoor scenes are beyond description, especially the big construction scenes. Thrills follow each other in rapid suc-cession, and clever scheming characers vie with each other in an effort to outdo themselves. This masterpiece i for today only.
